Global E^3

The Global Engineering Education Exchange is a study abroad opportunity for undergraduate (and some graduate) engineers to be exchanged between top U.S. and international engineering programs. Students in the program take engineering coursework in an international setting while paying tuition at home. More than 35 U.S. engineering schools and 50 programs in over 20 other countries worldwide are members of this academic exchange consortium (Global E^3 & Global E^4).

Deadline: March for Fall Semester/Academic Year; October for Spring Semester | Website: http://www.globale3.org

Whitaker International Fellows & Scholars Program

Initially founded by the Whitaker Foundation, the Whitaker Program supports international collaboration in the growing field of biomedical engineering, from graduating seniors to post-doctorate degree holders. The award covers travel, living expenses, and tuition for Fellows (partial or full, depending on host university).

Deadline: 3rd Monday in January | Website: http://www.whitaker.org
