The Center for Higher Education Capacity Development

The Institute of International Education's (IIE) Center for Higher Education Capacity Development (HECD) offers short term consulting and training services to build the capacity of public and private sector institutions to develop and manage international scholarship and exchange programs. We are also experienced in helping new universities identify talented students and faculty, develop strategic plans, and establish scholarship and career offices. IIE's approach is based on strategies and lessons learned from managing many of the world's largest and most prestigious educational initiatives. Our Center is staffed by experts with extensive experience in managing higher education projects and utilizing globally recognized best practices and standards.

What We Do

Provide Strategic and Advisory Services

We help organizations formulate institutional strategies and projects based on academic market needs, including branded scholarships and career and academic preparatory advising and services.

Identify Talent

We design effective outreach strategies and plans that support students before, during and after their programs, as well as manage the finances involved.

Offer Certification and Training

We develop and offer workshops and customized training to build capacity of scholarship management office and staff, with the potential to earn certification.
