India International Education Administrators Program
IIE’s Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES) and The United States—India Educational Foundation (USIEF) have announced a new seminar for 10 higher education administrators in the U.S. to take a two-week study tour of India in the Spring of 2012 (March 18th-31st). This seminar opportunity joins other CIES administrator programs to help international education professionals, academics, and senior-level higher education officials from the U.S. connect with their counterparts abroad. Register at www.iie.org/cies.

United States—India Educational Foundation (USIEF)
USIEF’s new office of U.S.-India Higher Education Cooperation (USIHEC) promotes U.S.-India linkages in numerous ways, including collaborative research, study abroad programs, faculty exchanges and conferences of higher education administrators from both countries. In the form of Fulbright-Nehru grants, USIHEC will offer two-week study tours in India and the U.S., designed especially for higher education administrators to learn more about post-secondary education and enhancing academic ties. The office will also be creating and maintaining a database of collaborations between American and Indian institutions.

Partner with EducationUSA in India
EducationUSA is the official name for U.S. Department of State-affiliated educational advising centers overseas. Each year EducationUSA centers receive millions of contacts from students all over the world. Centers are staffed by professional advisers, many of whom have studied in the U.S. Advisers provide comprehensive, objective information on all accredited U.S. higher educational institutions. Advisers are not agents or recruiters and are not permitted to receive commissions from colleges, universities or agents. There is a strong network of EducationUSA centers located throughout India including centers in New Delhi, Chennai, Kolkata, and Mumbai, and satellite centers in Ahmedabad, Bengaluru and Hyderabad.
U.S. Higher Education Fairs in India
To help your institution establish and build a presence in India, the Institute of International Education will organize higher education fairs in India during the fall of 2011. IIE’s Fairs are designed to provide U.S. university and college representatives with a well-managed event at reasonable cost, at which they can meet serious prospective students interested in American higher education. The 2011 Fairs will take place in November in New Delhi, Hyderabad, Chennai and Mumbai.

Attitudes and Perceptions of Prospective International Students from India
IIE released a new Briefing Paper that reveals how students from India select and perceive destinations for studying abroad. To download this IIE Briefing Paper and view others, please visit: http://www.iie.org/en/Research-and-Publications/Research-Projects/Briefing-Papers

IIENetworker Magazine, International Education in Asia
Continuing with IIENetworker’s goal to explore international education efforts in specific world regions, the Spring 2010 issue focuses on International Education in Asia. India has been in the spotlight as the leading sender of international students in the U.S. and with new initiatives taking place in its own higher education system. In an effort to contextualize the dynamic higher education environment in India, the IIENetworker features India as a Country Focus.

IIEPassport Study Abroad in Asia & Oceania
IIE’s IIEPassport study abroad books and the IIEPassport.org online database have been the industry standard for more sixty years, helping thousands of students identify and select study abroad programs. The IIEPassport Study Abroad in Asia and Oceania directory includes thousands of study abroad program listings offered by U.S. and foreign universities and study abroad providers. In addition to the study abroad program listings, the directory includes content provided by Lonely Planet on living, traveling and studying in the region, and provides readers with a photo-rich experience that presents an intimate look at each geographic location.

International India: A Turning Point in Educational Exchange with the U.S.
This report, published in February 2010 with support from the AIFS Foundation, is the only comprehensive volume in recent years to focus on U.S.-India higher education exchanges at a crucial juncture in this important relationship. In this report, Indian and American authors address wide-ranging topics including the process of internationalization and higher education policy debates within India, U.S. government and institutional strategies to improve Indo-U.S. higher education linkages, the growing study abroad relationship between the two countries, and the relationship between higher education, entrepreneurship and the success of the Indian diaspora in the U.S.

Promote Your Institution and Programs to Students in India and Around the World
IIE’s print and online publications, websites and higher education fairs offer a variety of targeted advertising opportunities for colleges and universities. U.S. institutions can also include their listings at no charge in IIE’s publications, including Funding for United States Study and Intensive English USA. For more information on listing programs and advertising placement, call IIE at 212-984-5367.

RESOURCES FOR BRINGING INTERNATIONAL SCHOLARS AND STUDENTS TO U.S. CAMPUSES

Visiting Fulbright Scholar Programs
The Visiting Fulbright Scholar Program can help colleges and universities internationalize their campuses by bringing scholars and professionals from abroad to the United States. Sponsored by the U.S. Department of State’s Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, the following programs (each with its own eligibility and application requirements) are available in 2011:

- Core Visiting Program: Brings approximately 800 visiting scholars and professionals to teach and conduct research at U.S. institutions for a semester, full academic year, and in some cases, up to two years. Learn more at www.iie.org/cies.
- Fulbright Specialists Program: Short-term grants ranging from two to six weeks are available for U.S. faculty and professionals to assist foreign institutions with specialized requests such as curriculum development, faculty development, or consulting. Applications are accepted year-round. More information is posted at www.iie.org/cies/specialists.
- Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence Program: This program targets U.S. colleges and universities in need of either first-time or enhanced internationalization assistance by providing a grant to host a visiting scholar or professional for up to one academic year. Liberal arts colleges, HBCUs, MSIs, and community colleges are encouraged to apply. More information is posted at www.iie.org/cies.
- Fulbright Occasional Lecture Fund (OLF): This travel fund provides Fulbright Visiting Scholars currently in the United States to accept guest lecturing invitations from other colleges and universities. More information is posted at www.iie.org/cies/olf.
- Hubert H. Humphrey Fellowship Program: This Fulbright program provides mid-career professionals from abroad with funds to spend 10 months in the U.S. to pursue non-degree academic study and professional experiences related to leadership and public service. More information is posted at www.humphreyfellowship.org.
More than 800 Grants Available for Outbound U.S. Scholars and Administrators to Live Abroad in 2011-2012

IIE’s Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES) has opened the latest grant competition for the U.S. Fulbright Scholar Program. The catalog of awards and a weekly webinar schedule is posted at www.iie.org/cies. The application deadline for most awards is August 2, 2010. For more information, visit the web site or contact scholars@iie.org.

Fulbright Foreign Language Teaching Assistant Program (FLTA)
Since 1968, the FLTA Program has aimed to strengthen foreign language instruction at U.S. educational institutions by establishing a native speaker presence. Sponsored by the U.S. Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, the FLTA Program provides both native speaking students, teachers and Americans with an opportunity to learn about each other's cultures and customs, thereby enhancing mutual understanding.
