LLEAP
FOR IMPROVED SRHR

EMERGING QUESTION

What would it take to develop and energize leaders who can collaborate across sectors, exercise their own leadership, inspire leadership in others, and develop and implement initiatives that improve critical SRHR outcomes in their communities?

POGRAM DESCRIPTION

LLEAP is a leadership development program designed by IIE—Institute of International Education and supported by Packard Foundation.

LLEAP's current targets are emerging leaders in the Oromia Region who are strategically positioned and work on SRHR/related programs. In a Cohort, 24 mid-level leaders, with a good balance of participants from government, civil society and private sectors including media are participating. The team maintains gender balance and will be dominated by emerging leaders.

RESULTS

The program aims to strengthen leadership skills at different level: personal, organizational, and community level.

Fellows will emerge from LLEAP with a 21st century leadership mindset; enhanced personal leadership, adaptive to ever changing global environment, responsive to current challenges and future demands; and proactively contribute to the improvement of SRHR in the country.
